Atomic Control Question

Western Powers Tell UN Control is Not Possible if Russia Does Not Cooperate

LAKE SUCCESS, May 7 — (AP) — The western powers told the United Nations today atomic energy control is impossible unless Russia decides to cooperate openly with the rest of the world.

The United States, France and Britain proposed to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission that the U. N. abandon attempts to set up world atomic controls until Russia changes her present attitude.

The three powers presented their opinions in the form of a report to the Security Council which they urged the commission to approve. If it is approved, the commission will be the first major U. N. organization to acknowledge failure.

The blame for the failure to write an atomic pact was laid by the three powers directly upon Russia.

Fight Indicated

This move indicated a fight in the regular assembly in Paris next fall over atomic control. If the report is stymied by a Soviet veto in the Security Council, it was reported the United States would carry it to the floor of the assembly with a demand for full debate.

"The Atomic Energy Commission reports that it has reached an impasse," the three powers said in the proposed report put before the commission.

They said they have been unable to obtain Russian agreement even to technical points of control, let alone other features of a world pact.

"As a result the commission has been forced to recognize that agreement on effective measures for the control of atomic energy is itself dependent on cooperation in broader fields of policy.

Can Serve No Useful Purpose

"The failure to achieve agreement on the international control of atomic energy arises from a situation that is beyond the competence of this commission. In this situation the commission concludes that no useful purpose can be served by carrying on negotiations at the commission level."

"The majority of the commission," the suggested report said, "is fully aware of the impact of its plan on traditional prerogatives of national sovereignty. But in the face of the realities of the problem it sees no alternative to the voluntary sharing by nations of their sovereignty in this field to the extent required by its proposals. It finds no other solution which will meet the facts, prevent national rivalries in this most dangerous field, and fulfill the commission's terms of reference.

Might Pave Way

"The new pattern of international cooperation and the new standards of openness in the dealings of one country with another that are indispensable in the field of atomic energy might in practice pave the way for international cooperation in broader fields, for the control of other weapons of mass destruction and even for the elimination of war itself as an instrument of national policy."

Testimony on Limiting Gas To Customers

Hearing Before MPSC This Morning; Cities Intervene

JEFFERSON CITY, May 7—(AP)—The Missouri Public Service Commission heard testimony today on whether it should limit the number of customers who can buy gas next winter from utilities served by Cities Service Pipeline company.

A temporary order curtailing gas to new customers, including new homes, was issued April 16. Today's hearing was to decide whether the order should be made permanent.

Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri are affected, including Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Joplin, Nevada, Carthage and Sedalia. All are served by utilities getting gas from Cities Service.

Peak Demand Ahead

Montgomery Power, vice president of Gas Service company, Kansas City, told the commission next winter is expected to produce a peak demand 57,876,000 cubic feet greater than last year. The increase in Missouri alone is expected to exceed the 1947-48 season by 28,867,000 cubic feet, he said.

Cities Service has advised the company it can supply only 15,000,000 more cubic feet than last winter, he reported.

Jerome Joffee, counsel for the city of Kansas City, sought to show in cross examination that would be enough to take care of an estimated 11,000,000 cubic feet needed for new construction.

Intervenes

But Powers said the peak demand on a day of four below zero cold would eat up all the extra supply, plus all the gas normally distributed to industrial users. And there would still be a deficit, he said.

A group of 76 Kansas City heating contractors intervened in the case yesterday. They said a permanent curtailment order affecting new homes would cause a crisis in their business.

Judge Thomas A. Hunt Succeeds Brown Harris

JEFFERSON CITY, May 7—(AP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly appointed Thomas R. Hunt, Kansas City Democrat, judge of Division Four in the 16th Judicial Circuit yesterday.

Girls Will Just Naturally Be Hair Pullers

OAKLAND, Calif., May 7—(AP)—Girls just will be hair pullers—and with astounding results.

Police broke up a gang fight yesterday involving 350 pupils of Frick and Elmhurst junior high schools by nabbing the leaders—and these weapons:

Two sawed-off baseball bats, four two-foot lengths of pipe, one bicycle pedal fashioned into brass knuckles, one butcher knife and a dozen small metal bars.

The trouble started after a hair-pulling by two girls at an all-girl track meet between the two schools.

Police Break Up Crowd With Tear Gas Bomb

LINCOLN, Nebr., May 7—(AP)—Lincoln police threw a tear gas bomb near some 2,000 University of Nebraska students today in an effort to disperse a crowd which gathered to protest attempts to tow in double-parked cars. There was no violence.

The bomb failed to disperse the students, according to university spokesmen. Police then were requested to leave by Dean of Faculties C. W. Borgmann. The student crowd broke up when the police left.

Later, approximately 100 students paraded to the city police station. Police closed station doors, and the parade left.

The incident started about 9 a. m. when university policeman Sgt. John Furrow called a wrecker to tow in some of the double-parked cars in front of the social service building.

Disconnected Wires

The wrecker arrived just as classed were being dismissed, and students gathered to boo the proceedings. Several students disconnected wires on the wrecker so that it was unable to move.

The university public relations office reported that one city officer then threw the tear gas bomb on the street in an attempt to disperse the crowd.

Meanwhile, someone turned in a false alarm, which brought all the city downtown fire apparatus to the campus.

Air Force is Warming up to Get Machinery

Lawmakers Would Like to Avoid Vote on Draft

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—The Air Force readied buying orders for 2,727 new warplanes today, awaiting only President Truman's signal to start building a 70-group peacetime airmada.

Shortly after the Senate gave a 74 to 2 vote of approval yesterday to a $3,233,200,000 airpower expansion fund, Air Force officials announced they were warming up their purchasing machinery.

A Senate-House conference committee was expected to act swiftly to compromise minor differences in the bill previously passed by a 343 to 3 vote in the House. The measure then will go to the White House were favorable action seems likely despite the $822,000,000 added to Mr. Truman's original request.

Start Assured

This was the money tacked on to assure a start toward the 70-group air force rather than the 55 group first planned or the 66-group compromise put forward by Secretary of Defense Forrestal in his plea for a "balanced" military expansion.

While most of the debate centered on the theme that air power is the best defense against attack, a number of lawmakers left no doube they would like to avoid an election year vote on reviving the dragt and setting up universay military training.

Mr. Truman, who asked for both of these, took scathing exception to a substitute manpower plan put forward by Rep. Leo Allen (R-Ill), chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Suggested Shelving Draft

Allen, whose committee has blocked action on UMT, suggested shelving the draft as well by offering up to $1,500 to volunteers.

Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday this was the most asinine proposition he has seen yet.

The Air Force said the new funds will provide 243 bombers, 1,575 jet fighters and 909 reconnaissance, transport, training, rescue and liaison aircraft by -953.

Tag Day for Freedom Train

Saturday will be another tag day for the Freedom Train fund, Spiz girls and Mizpah of Smith-Cotton and Sacred Heart high schools respectively, to sell the red, white and blue shields made at Smith-Cotton.

Abe Silverman, chairman of the finance committee raising funds to help finance the train, asks those who may not be on the street and who want to contribute to leave or mail the money to the Freedom train fund, care C. L. Hanley, Third National bank.

Organizations that have voted to make contributions to the fund may also send the money to Mr. Hanley at the bank.

Anonymous Gift to Outstanding Students

SPICKARD, Mo., May 7—(AP)—Three outstanding students of the Spickard high school graduating class last night received a total of $200 from an anonymous giver.

Bernard Baker, named best all-around student on points covering activities and personality, received $75; Phyllis Cox, valedictorian, got $75, and Miss Jo Cooper, salutatorian, $50.

Harry Mayo, Spickard banker, who presented the awards, refused to disclose the donor's identity. He said it was a customer of the bank.

He Should Have Known

IOLA, Kas., May 7—(AP)—Arthur L. Barnes paid a $3 traffic fine in city court—with no argument.

"I should have known that no parking sign was there," he said. "I painted it."

Barnes is a city street department employe.

Disgruntled Seniors Must Give In to Truman's Speech Plans

BERKLEY, Calif., May 7—(AP)—Disgruntled seniors of the University of California were told today that their June graduation exercises must be rearranged to fit President Truman's speaking schedule—whether they like it or not.

Some students have complained because commencement exercises were changed from June 19 to June 12 to enable the president to speak.

The shift upset the schedule for student festivities, and, more important, made it necessary for some classes to plan final exams after the diplomas have been handed out.

But today university president Robert Gordon Sproul told senior class president Norman Thomas to ask the students to cooperate—because June 12 will be graduation day with no possibility of change.

Hot Under the Collar

At the same time, Southern California Democratic leaders were more than mildly warm under the collar over arrangements for President Truman's visit to Los Angeles, June 14.

Chairman Rollin L. McNitt of the party's County Central Committee said yesterday at Los Angeles that the president's advisers are "playing a stupid game and ignoring all the party leadership" in California.

President Truman has accepted the Greater Los Angeles Press club's invitation to luncheon. He said in Washington it was the only bid he received from Southern California.

McNitt, however, said he had invited the president to be the guest of the local committee. State Chairman James Roosevelt said he had wired the White House April 26 to the same effect and received no answer.

'No' Attitude On Part of the Post Office

To Suggestion it Take Over Losing Small Package Work

By Jack Adams

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—The post office department adopted an "Oh, No!" attitude today toward suggestions that it take over the losing "small package" business of the railway express agency.

The trouble is the post office hasn't found the handling of the small packages very profitable either.

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson noted that the cost of handling parcel post this year year will run to about $50,000,000 more than the parcel postage sold. He added to a reporter:

"We have already outgrown our pants in this department as a result of the diversion to parcel post following recent increases in railway express rates. We just don't have the facilities to handle all of the express company's business."

Under Discussion

Interstate commerce commissioner J. Haden Alldredge has been discussing with other government officials and railroad interests a proposal for discontinuing railway express, a "pool" operation by the railroads which has been functioning for 109 years.

It has been a loss business for some time chiefly because of the cost of handling small packages. Express rates have been raised three times since the end of the war on ICC findings that operating expense was exceeding income.

Alldredge believes the railroads should stop handling any package weighing less than 70 pounds—the top limit for parcel post. He thinks the under-70-pounds business should move as parcel post or, if the shipper prefers, by motor freight, the cargo air lines, or through freight forwarders. The latter assemble small shipments for re-shipment in big lots at the most favorable rates.

Might Increase Efficiency

The ICC commissioner has suggested that cutting small package handling out of railroad operations would increase railroad efficiency, make possible new higher-speed freight services for large shippers and increase postal revenues. The railroads would still figure in the operation, however, as haulers of mail cars, for which they receive pay from the government.

These ideas were enthusiastically endorsed last night by board chairman Robert R. Young of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

But Postmaster General Donaldson commented:

"We just arent geared with the space, trucks or personnel to take over the express business.

Ten-Year-Old Child Accidentally Killed

ST. LOUIS, May 7—(AP)—Ten-year-old Yvonne Darling Whaley was shot and killed last night when a .22 caliber rifle fired accidentally as Vack Struble, 13, picked it up in his trailer home, Deputy Sheriff Charles Adams related.

Adams said Yvonne was playing in the trailer with Vack's sister, Mary, 15. The boy placed the rifle against a sink after shooting at cans in the trailer yard. Later when he went to pick up the gun, it fired as he touched it, Adams said. The bullet struck the girl in the left temple.

Presidential Candidates Are Now Officially in Campaign

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—The 1948 presidential election campaign can be considered officially open now. Two candidates have come out in favor of dogs.

Gov. Tom E. Dewey of New York was first. He rose to the occasion when a terrier came sniffing up to his speaker's platform at Alliance, Neb., a few weeks back.

"Hi-ya, boy," said the governor. "Would you like to come up and join us?"

The dog didn't, as it turned out, but Dewey was not miffed. He told the audience he used to have a terrier just like that when he was a boy.

"The governor is a great dog lover," one of his aides confided to the press.

Next to get into the act: President Truman.

He went Dewey one better. He came out in favor of kids, too. Children and dogs, Mr. Truman told the national conference on family life yesterday, are "just as important as Wall street and the railroads."

Candidates Taft, Stassen and the others haven't formally endorsed dogs to date, so far as the record shows, but their backers will expect them to. A man running for president is supposed to be as firmly pro-dog as he is anti-sin.

News On Strikes

CLEVELAND, May 7—(AP)—The rail strike is set for 6 a. m. local standard time in each time zone, Tuesday, May 11.

Yard employes who are members of the engineers, firemen and switchmen brotherhoods have been instructed to leave their jobs at that hour.

Members of the three brotherhoods on moving trains at that hour will complete their runs or bring their trains to the nearest terminal tie-up point before walking out.

ST. LOUIS, May 7—(AP)—A nation-wide railroad strike would cause layoffs in the St. Louis area totalling between 200,000 and 250,000 employes, Chamber of Commerce President George Smith estimated today.

Big industries have no reserve supplies of coal since the recent coal strike, Smith said, and if the railroads stop running there will be no way to bring sufficient amounts into the area to continue operation.

Smith predicted manufacturers dependent on iron and steel supplies would feel the pinch first. A strike, such as is scheduled for next Tuesday morning, would cost local business firms hundreds of thousands of dollars a day, he said.

KANSAS CITY, May 7—(AP)—An emergency plan for pooling truck facilities in this area in event of a rail strike was under study today.

A 14-man committee was named by Lewis E. Selders, chamber of commerce transportation vice-president, to meet Monday to complete plans. He estimated there were more than 500,000 trucks in the Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska area available for use in an emergency system.

Back to Normal After Errol Flynn Leaves

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 1—(AP)—Errol Flynn, movie actor, who came to Columbia yesterday on a visit that was unexpected but nonetheless thrilling to Stephens College bobby soxers, was gone today and hotel elevators were operating normally again after groaning under a unprecedented crush of young feminity.

Flynn left by automobile to join his wife in St. Louis. She flew there today from Hollywood. He flew to St. Louis yesterday and came to Columbia by train—a whim, he said.

The flag bears a large, red 'E' on a white background. It was designed by Duncan Sandys, son-in-law of Winston Churchill.

Pueblo C of C Charges Group With Using Its 'Coined Word'

PUEBLO, Colo., May 7—(AP)—The Pueblo Chamber of Commerce has filed suit for $113,730 damages against the Santa Fe, N. M., Chamber of Commerce.

The Pueblo boys say the New Mexico group illegally used Pueblo's newly-coined word and a very fancy word, indeed — alti-tropicool.

Alti-tropicool is admittedly a come-on word.

L. M. Rhoades, head of the chamber of commerce here, explains that it was coined by chamber member Jack Lacy to describe Pueblo's "stimulating altitude, tropical sunshine and cool mountain breezes.

The suit, filed here in federal district court, charges that last February — when the word involved was "born"—managers of the Santa Fe and Pueblo chambers of commerce entered an agreement under which New Mexico would not use alti-tropicool in any form of advertising

Took Precautions

Lacy introduced the word to the public February 27 at a Colorado-New Mexico chamber of commerce meeting, the suit declares. Shortly afterward he and his colleagues took steps to protect its exclusiveness.

Lacy says that later the New Mexicans decided they had a right to the word since their climate was so similar to that of Pueblo's.

The Pueblo group charges that it has already spent more than $8,000 in a national advertising campaign in an attempt to permanently associate the word with Pueblo's climate.

"Exemplary damages" of $100,000 also are asked, "along with other relief as the court may see just and equitable under the premises."

Meeting Fails In Results

White House Parley Ends Without Any Progress; Another Session Called

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—In stepped up efforts to head off a railroad strike, the White House held two conferences with union men today and called representatives of the railroads to a meeting tomorrow.

Dr. John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, telephoned W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, to bring the carriers' negotiating committee to the White House tomorrow morning "as early as possible."

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, made the announcement after a conference with Steelman.

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—A White House conference aimed at averting a railroad strike broke up today without a sign of progress. Another meeting was set for 3 p. m. (EST).

Presidential Adviser John R. Steelman talked for an hour and a half with heads of the three strike-threatening rail brotherhoods.

Eben Ayres, a presidential press secretary, told reporters that Mr. Steelman said it was only "a general exploratory conference."

Alvanley Johnston, head of the locomotive engineers, told reporters:

"All we did was spend an hour and a half talking with Mr. Steelman—exploring the situation."

Asked whether government seizure of the railroads was discussed, Johnston replied with a loud "No."

Between 20 and 25 engineers and firemen on the Missouri Pacific and 12 engineers and firemen on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad in Sedalia would be affected by the railroad strike if it should take place.

Although the conductors and brakemen are not striking they would also be affected as they, in sympathy with the other two Brotherhoods, would not work. There would be 25 brakemen and conductors on the Missouri Pacific and 10 conductors and brakemen on the M. K. & T. in Sedalia.

No Proposal

Asked if Mr. Steelman had advanced any proposal for settling the dispute, Johnston shouted "No" to reporters questioning him on a sidewalk outside the White House grounds.

Accompanying Johnston to the talk with Steelman were David B. Robertson, president of the firemen and enginemen and Arthur J. Glover, Jr., head of the switchmen's union. Neither Glover nor Robertson had any comment.

Earlier, President Truman went over the whole situation with his cabinet in an hour-long meeting. It was indicated no specific conclusions were reached at the cabinet session.

For the present Mr. Truman is leaving all details in Steelman's hands but keeping in close personal touch with the developments.

Meeting Delayed

Steelman's meeting with the brotherhood men was delayed an hour and a half because Arthur J. Glover, Jr., president of the switchmen's union, was late arriving in Washington from Buffalo. Glover's train was late.

Leaving the cabinet session, Attorney General Clark told reporters he advised the president in an opinion last week that he has ample power to seize the railroads—in event he decides that step is advisable.

At the same time, Clark emphasized that no orders looking to seizure have been prepared.

Clark said the seizure power is under a 1916 law.

Only Last Resort

Top presidential advisers insist that the president will consider seizure only as the last resort. He was said to be clinging to hope that representatives of the brotherhoods and of the carriers will reach an agreement.

Steelman, Mr. Truman's labor expert, talked yesterday with W. T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads.

Clark said he would see President Truman again this afternoon and ask permission to release the seizure power opinion to the public.

Prepared by the solicitor general's office, the opinion is based on a recent supreme court decision that the United States is still technically at war.

Christian Joy

Joy is an essential part of the Christian spirit. "Rejoice and be glad," the Savior said. When He spoke thus He had in mind not only the anticipated joys of heaven, but those experienced on earth.

The Apostle Thomas defined pleasure as the possession of good. A true Christian appreciates the joy of having been made in the image and likeness of God; of having been redeemed by the sacrifice of His Son; of possessing natural and supernatural faculties whose exercise is satisfying and rewarding. He rejoices over such gifts and blessings as a happy home, health, good education, work, and the opportunities of recreation.

Nor does the intelligent Christian cease to rejoice over his material blessings even in days of sorrow and tribulation. He is patient and untroubled in the midst of adversity, not because he welcomes pain or disappointment, but because he knows that whatever befalls him is part of God's providence; because in every seeming misfortune there is always the certainty of God's limitless love.

The greatest foundation of man's joy is the knowledge that he is created for eternal happiness. Even earthly pleasures are enhanced by the joy of anticipating "what God hath prepared for those who love Him." With such firmness of faith, no Christian need ever be gloomy or depressed; rather he feels doubly obliged to remember Christ's injunction to rejoice.

It must always be remembered that man's joy, to be true and lasting, must have a supernatural basis. It is significant that joy in worldly possessions decreases if we regard these gifts as an end in themselves instead of looking upon them as an incentive to keep aspiring after a higher and immeasurably greater happiness. The whole spirit of rejoicing is merely a reflection of man's readiness to make God's will supreme, knowing that if he serves God faithfully he will one day possess a joy that no human mind can conceive.

Making Reform Stick Is an Old Problem

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

One of the really vital problems of human betterment and progress is that of making reforms stick.

Under the influence of a great leader, a Moses, an Elijah, an Ezra, a Savonarola, or a D. L. Moody, a community or a people rises to a height of religious enthusiasm and moral quickening, even though religious enthusiasm and moral quickening have not, unfortunately, always gone hand in hand.

Under this awakened fervor new impulses and attitudes are established. Evil ways and habits are renounced. Harmful and questionable institutions and practices are purged. New generosities and sacrificial devotions are easily fostered and it looks as if a new day had dawned.

Sometimes the reform and quickening are induced by some outstanding event. A great disaster falls upon some community and selfish motives become lost in united action of a very noble sort. Even war, with all its horrors, as we have seen in two world wars, may unite a people in high endeavor and devotion to the common defense, welfare and safety.

Then, as we have seen also in two world wars, relapse sets in. People return to their old ways. Selfishness becomes evident where yesterday there was a sense of community and devotion to the common good. And this unfortunately has been the history of almost all movements of reform. The deepest problem of reform is that of making reform movements stick.

An outstanding example was of the way in which the Puritan revival in Cromwell's time in England quickly became succeeded by the restoration of the Stuarts and one of the worst periods of degradation and debauchery in the entire history of mankind.

But we have had examples nearer home. Was there ever a more morally earnest and spiritually minded group than the Pilgrims, who founded the Plymouth colony? Yet a former Plymouth minister, who knew the history of the colony well, once told me that there was a serious moral letdown in the second generation.

These thoughts are suggested by the story of the reforms in Israel under Ezra, described in the Biblical Book of Ezra, and evidence of what happened subsequently as it is found in the Book of Malachi and other late prophetic books of the Old Testament.

But reforms, if they have been deep and sincere, never become wholly reversed. There is a seed or germ of moral quickening that takes root again, as is evidenced in the spiritual life of the restored Israel and its relation to the rise and spread of Christianity.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"ADAM AND FALLEN MAN" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 9, 1948.

Golden Text: Job 22:23.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Rom. 8:38, 39). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The real man being linked by Science to his Maker, mortals need only turn from sin and lose sight of mortal selfhood to find Christ, the real man and his relation to God, and to recognize the divine sonship." (p. 316)

The Innocent Impostor

By Renee Shann

COPYRIGHT BY RENEE SHANN; DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Patience Mond, primly brought up by two maiden aunts, is in love with Paul Taylor, whom her aunts have forbidden her to see because they have never been properly introduced. Charlotte, Patience's twin sister whom she has not seen since childhood, is a stage star rehearsing a show in London. She invites Patience up to spend a day with her, dresses her smartly from her own wardrobe. They are to lunch with Roger Dickson, popular actor and Charlotte's boyfriend. Charlotte jokingly begs Patience not to take Roger away from her. At the last minute Charlotte has to lunch with Dwight Breeden, movie producer, and Patience is left to meet Roger alone. Roger is charmed by the naive young girl, suggests they meet again, holds her hand at the theater.

XIV

PATIENCE felt her hand released suddenly. She glanced along the row of seats, aware of movement some little way off, and saw Charlotte coming towards them. Her sister slid silently into her seat and smiled at Roger and then at her and leaning forward whispered that she hoped they'd been getting along all right together.

"Fine," whispered Roger.

Patience merely smiled.

"Breeden O. K.?" she heard Roger inquire.

"Better than I dreamed. I'll tell you in the interval."

It made thrilling hearing. Charlotte was to dance in the new picture. She was to receive 300 pounds a week.

"Three hundred!" gasped Patience.

"She's a success," said Roger.

Charlotte gave a contented little gurgle. "Anyway, it was all most satisfactory."

"So was our lunch, wasn't it, Patience?" said Roger cheerfully. And just a little to annoy Charlotte, and just a little because he was slightly jealous that she could so coolly bring off that 300 pounds a week: "My sweet, you'll have to keep your eye on us."

Charlotte smiled and blew him a kiss. Roger, of course, was only teasing. She was feeling top of the world at the moment. Surer of Roger somehow than she had been. She knew that, like herself, he worshiped success.

"When do you start on the picture?" asked Roger.

"Not for a few weeks. But that's a good thing really. I'd like to get the show well started first."

Patience looked at her sister with admiration. Roger, she felt sure, must be terribly in love with her. No doubt he'd already forgotten he'd suggested that he should lunch with her, Patience, on Monday. Certainly he made no further reference to it.

• • •

WHEN the show was over they went back to Charlotte's hotel for tea. And now the time was drawing near for her to catch her train back to the country.

"Going as you are?" asked Charlotte.

"What do you think?"

"I don't see why you shouldn't."

They saw her off at the station. Charlotte stood at the window of the carriage smiling at her and suggested that before she arrived home it might be as well to remove most of her make-up.

"Take it off in a nice quiet lane with that cold cream I've given you."

There was a bustle along the train. Doors began to shut. Patience hung out of the window.

"Thank you for a lovely day, Charlotte. You'll come down again very soon, won't you?"

"The first moment possible. I'll write and tell you."

The guard blew his whistle. Patience smiled at Roger.

"Goodby, and thank you for my nice lunch, and for taking me to the theater."

"Goodby." his eyes met hers, "I'll be seeing you."

She sank back into her corner of the carriage as the train steamed slowly out of the platform. Just what had he meant by that? Anything special or had it just been said in passing? She couldn't be certain.

The train sped on towards the open country. Patience wondered if Paul were on it. If he were she'd not noticed him.

Her own carriage was crowded. She considered trying to remove her make-up on the train, and decided that, as Charlotte had suggested, the quiet seclusion of a country lane would be better. At Oakley, a little to her relief, there was no one she knew alighting at the station.

SHE strapped the suitcase Charlotte had lent her for the clothes she'd worn to go to town onto the back of her bicycle, and hoped it wouldn't wobble too uncomfortably. It was rather large and clumsy. And the gray dress was really hardly suitable for a bicycle ride in the country.

She turned off the main road and it was quiet now with high hedges sheltering her as she rode along. She saw a gate leading to a meadow. Perhaps if she just slipped through it it might be a good idea because then there'd be less chance of her being seen by anyone who might be passing.

She leant her bicycle against it, and, unstrapping the suitcase once more, took the jar of cold cream out of it. She slid through the gate and, standing there just behind the hedge, smeared it all over her face and then rubbed fiercely with her handkerchief.

Suddenly she heard a low-drawn whistle. She looked round sharply. Paul was leaning over the gate.

"What on earth do you think you're doing?" he asked her.

Patience stared at him in dismay. Hot color raced up her cheeks as she met his mocking eyes. More than anything she was conscious of feeling a fool. What on earth must he be thinking of her? Here she was, her face covered with nasty sticky cream, and heaven alone knew what she must look like. Heaven and unfortunately Paul also.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-'Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, May 1—Albert Goss, master of the National Grange, bluntly warned President Truman the other day that we are inviting another "dust bowl" disaster unless we begin redeveloping the grasslands of the west.

"I have just returned from a trip to Wyoming and can tell you that the dangers are very real," reported Goss. "There has been too much plowing up of the grasslands we developed as insurance against future dust storms."

The Grange leader, who is the ablest farm spokesman in Washington, explained that the high prices and demand for wheat for domestic and foreign aid were chiefly responsible, since farmers didn't want to maintain pasture lands when they could turn a quick profit on grain crops.

"Most people take it for granted that we have licked the dust bowl hazards which caused such tragedy in the west some years back," added Goss. "However, dust can blow again and will blow in my opinion within the next few years unless those grasslands are restored."

Goss also urged Truman to consider a "more flexible" support price plan for farm products to prevent possible price collapses, principally in grains, when European nations become self sustaining and buy less grain from us.

"Our farm production is now 35 per cent greater than before the war, while domestic consumption is only 25 per cent more," Goss reported. "We are okay as long as Europe continues to take the surplus, but if there is a bumper grain crop abroad in the next year or two and our exports suddenly decrease, prices are likely to dive with them."

Goss recommended fluctuating support prices (sub-parity prices guaranteed by the government) from year to year, based on supply and demand, also a "stop-loss" price floor for wheat and certain other major crops, to prevent disastrous price plunges.

The president promised to think it over.

Hitler's Bankers

It hasn't been noticed in the welter of international news, but two of Hitler's former bankers have now been able to move back into power in Germany.

They are Herman J. Abs and August Schniewind who have been named president and chairman, respectively, of the board of directors for the new tri-zonal Bank Deutsche Laender (Bank of the German States). This bank operates under the U. S., French and British, but the German board members were allowed to make their selection at a secret meeting.

Because of the growing U. S. policy of forgiving the Nazis, nothing was done to block the two bankers, but the whole thing was explained to Secretary of State George Marshall in a confidential airgram, sent by U. S. political adviser Robert Murphy.

"Proceedings of that meeting not made public," Murphy radioed the secretary of state, "but there are indications that vote on Abs was 7 to 4 and the vote on Schniewind was 8 to 3. . . . No easy method exists for determining what voting really was, since customarily German meetings are secret."

Herr Abs was a director of the Deutsche Bank and Herr Schniewind was a director of the Reichsbank under Hitler.

In his confidential airgram, Murphy reported: "Although Abs apparently never was an NSDAP (Nazi) member, he cooperated hand in glove during the third reich with leading political personalities in government, industry and party circles. Abs obtained special permission of the reichs wirtschafts ministerium to hold an excess of 20 directorships, a limit established by the corporation law of 1937. He became prominent in 1937 as chief of foreign department of Deutsche bank, and was in many circles considered to be the most brilliant and energetic member of the Deutsche bank's Vorstand (board of directors). Subject took important role in imperialistic expansion of Deutsche bank following Nazi political and military absorption."

Herr Schniewind, recently appointed liaison officer for the European recovery program, was a director of the reichsbank under Bjalmar Schacht until Schacht fell into disfavor with the Nazis. Then Schniewind, still a Nazi favorite, moved to Seiler and Company, a banking firm in Munich, where he increased in influence as the bank was "Aryanized."

Seven other German bankers, all with democratic political backgrounds, were considered along with Abs and Schniewind for the banking posts. But the two Nazi sympathizers won out.

Murphy hinted to Secretary Marshall that the British were to blame for Abs.

"The French Financial adviser has voiced objection to Abs for position in question and U. S. financial adviser concurs," reported Murphy. "Technically, however, Abs has been deNazified according to regular procedures in the British zone."

Murphy admitted that the Tripartite Vetting party, an organ of the military government that must clear all German officials, had registered lukewarm objections.

"Tripartite Vetting party states it is now attempting to reach agreement on standard of suitability to apply to appointees of Bank Deutsche Laender," Murphy explained in his report to Marshall. "Since no standards are agreed upon, Tripartite Vetting Party has merely indicated to allied bank commission, to which it reports, that it doubts suitability of Schniewind and Abs and believes that if full available evidence were known to German board of directors, they would probably reject both men."

Significantly the allied bank commission could veto the two German bankers, but reports from Germany indicate it will do the opposite.

No Piano

President Truman always takes great delight in inaugurating the "Buddy poppy" relief drive of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. For, back in Missouri, he used to help put over the drive as a VFW member himself.

The other day when Truman received the first poppy from 5-year-old Sandra Marie Smith, he reached in his pocket and handed his tiny visitor a bright, new half dollar.

"Oh, thank you," replied the little girl, who lives at the VFW home for war widows and orphans in Eaton Rapids, Michigan. "And now, will you play the piano?"

The president laughingly replied that he would be glad to accommodate, but unfortunately there was no piano in his office.

Hal Boyle's Column

By Hal Boyle

CUSTER, S. D., May 6—(AP)—The most controversial figure in the Black Hills today is a 500-foot-tall dream in a man's head.

The head that holds the dream is on the shoulders of Korczak Ziolkowski, Boston-born sculptor and war veteran.

The figure in the dream is a gigantic memorial statue of Crazy Horse, famous Sioux warrior — a statue so huge 2,000 people could stand on the chief's outflung arm.

To make his dream come true Ziolkowski must carve it out himself from Thunderhead mountain.

And that is what is causing the controversy. These "Magic Mountains" were once sacred ground to the Sioux. Today they are less venerated but no less loved by the white victors who have turned the Black Hills into a year-round vacation land.

Stocked With Game

They have stocked the area with wild game — pheasant, deer, elk, buffalo, beaver — and want to keep it fresh and unspoiled.

For this reason many grumbled when Gutzon Borglum conceived the Mount Rushmore memorial. Most are glad now he carried it out. The great shrine carrying the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt draws 6,000 tourist visitors a day during the summer. The people of South Dakota are proud of it.

The Crazy Horse monument proposal, however, is meeting perhaps even sturdier criticism than did Borglum's Rushmore project.

"We don't want to turn our Black Hills into a sculptor's gallery," said one elderly resident.

Behind the objection also is a feeling that the Indian memorial might dwarf Rushmore, which is about twenty miles away. Others think, on the other hand, it would serve as a twin drawing card for tourists.

Few Question His Competency

Few of those who question Ziolkowski's plan question his competency — or his courage. His head of Paderewski was voted by specetators as the most popular sculptural exhibit at the New York World's Fair. He also worked for a short time with Borglum on Mount Rushmore.

I went to see Ziolkowski at the spacious wooden lodge he designed and built for himself near Thunderhead mountain.

The sculptor is 39, fiery, boyish—and determined. His hair is shaggy and tousled. His friendly grin spreads a dark mustache. He still wears the old GI boots he wore overseas. He likes to talk about his Crazy Horse memorial and loves to bat down arguments against it.

May Take 30 Years

"It has cost me $81,000 so far—and I haven't put my chisel to stone," he said cheerfully. "But I'll finish it if it takes 40 years."

Ziolkowski said he was first asked in 1939 by Chief Henry Standing Bear to carve the memorial because "we want the white man to know the red man had heroes, too."

"So I came out here and bought a mountain," smiled the sculptor.

It was Standing Bear also who insisted that the memorial —symbol of the proud Sioux nation's vanished glory — be to Crazy Horse, the great warrior chief who preferred death to life as a reservation Indian.

Crazy Horse is to the Sioux what George Washington might have been to the American people if Washington had lost his war and been treacherously slain.

Rides in Battle

The proposed monument shows him, arm flung forward imperiously, hair streaming in the wind, as he rode into battle astride the stallion that gave him his name. The mountain site is 500 feet tall, 900 feet long.

"I would like to have a Sioux museum and an Indian village at the base of the monument to show the old Sioux culture," said Ziolkowski. He said that with the help of promised Indian helpers he hoped to finance construction through tourist revenue. The immediate problem is to obtain funds for initial equipment.

"I may be bald and wearing a long beard when you come again," Ziolkowski smiled, "but this monument to the Indian — it will be here forever."

Completed, it would make the Sphinx look like an oversized mouse.

Connie Mack's A's Win Five Straight Games

Difficult to Put Finger on Reason For Their Success

By Jack Hand
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Give a cheer for 85-year-old Connie Mack and his surprising Philadelphia Athletics. Five wins—straight—climaxed by a kayo decision over Bobby Feller, have boosted the A's into the American league lead.

Hitting Only .246

It's difficult to put a finger on the reason for the A's success. They are hitting only .246 as a club and the top batter, Pete Suder at .346, is spotted eighth in the order. Only five of the first 14 pitchers went the route. Still they win. Shortstop Eddie Joost, with four homers and a .333 average rates some credit.

Pitching, of course, is bound to be the Athletics' strong point but sore arms and the poor spring form of Bill McCahan and Joe Coleman held them back. Lou Brissie, the brilliant rookie with the injured leg, helped out with two wins and now Dick Fowler seems ready to carry his share of the load.

Fowler worked only two-thirds of an inning on relief before yesterday's 8-5 victory over Cleveland.

Feller was belted out in the fourth inning, never recovering from a four-run first inning during which Manager Lou Boudreau made two costly errors.

Enliven Fenway Park

George Vico, Detroit's rookie first baseman and Birdie Tebbets, the Boston Red Sox' catcher staged an impromptu fight to enliven the proceedings at Fenway park. The two players fell when Tebbets tagged Vico as he ran back toward third base as a squeeze play went awry.

Vico punched Tebbets' mask and Birdie flung it off. Then he threw a punch. After they had been separated and ejected from the game, they scuffled again in the grandstand tunnel to the dressing rooms.

Although the Red Sox knocked out Hal Newhouser in the first inning, they lost the game to Detroit, 8-3. Hal White walked six but allowed only four hits in 8 2-3 innings while the Tigers flattened Jack Kramer with his first loss.

There was an argument in New York, too, where the St. Louis Browns claimed Bobby Brown's game-winning homer was a foul ball. The homer, perilously close to the right field foul pole, came with a man on in the eighth for a 6-5 victory.

Browns Stage Rally

The Browns staged a three-run rally in the eighth inning and overcame a two-run deficit. Jerry Priddy's triple scored Bobby Dillinger and Chuck Stevens.

Pitcher Cliff Fannin could have had his second victory of the season instead of his second defeat if a few breaks would have gone his way. The Browns wasted singles by Dillinger and Roy Partee in the third.

Washington pulled up to the .500 mark by shutting out Chicago for the second night in a row, 5-0, on Early Wynn's three-hit pitching. Wynn hurled hitless ball in the last six frames.

Pittsburgh's six-game winning streak was broken in the National league when the New York Giants thumped the Pirates, 9-2. The result left the Bucs in first place only 18 percentage points ahead of the Giants.

All other National league games were washed out.

Indianapolis Invades Minneapolis Today

By the Associated Press

League leading Indianapolis invaded Minneapolis today to open a four-game series. Indianapolis increased its lead over second-place St. Paul to two full games in the American Association race by downing the Saints last night, 10 to 2.

In yesterday's only other league game, Toledo tumbled Minneapolis from third place into fourth behind the idle Milwaukee Brewers by overpowering the Millers, 11 to 3.

At St. Paul, Jim Bagby limited the Saints to five hits while the Indians tagged Phil Haugstad, Pat McGlothin and Charlie Samakalis for 10 safe blows.

Today's games:
Louisville at Kansas City, night.
Columbus at Milwaukee, night.
Toledo at St. Paul, night.
Indianapolis at Minneapolis also at night.

• Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

ELLENVILLE, N. Y., May 7—(AP)—Rocky Graziano was arguing with an old-time boxer who sought to give him some advice. . . . "I can't box," the Rock insisted. "Every time I try, I get hit with everything in sight. I gotta keep moving in there and giving 'em that left and right." . . . Rocky had just proved that fact to the satisfaction of all observers in his second boxing session in preparation for next month's tussle with Tony Zale. . . . A couple of speedy sparring partners had managed to evade most of his wallops and to cuff him about rather easily. . . . Of course, there's some explanation for that. Graziano has been galloping up and down the mountains around the Nevele country club for a couple of weeks and is in magnificent physical shape. He also was looking at his rivals with rather magnificent disdain. He knew they couldn't hurt him and that he didn't dare hit them as hard as he could. A little later he'll start punching against light heavyweights or heavies and really can cut loose. Meanwhile his job is to speed up and sharpen up his punching, which suffered considerably during a ten-month layoff. . . . Dumb Dan Morgan, who always gets in the last word on such matters, summed it up: "He doesn't know the first thing about defensive boxing but he's hitting as hard as ever. He's what I'd call a dangerous catcher."

Enough is Enough

When the Athletics visited in Washington the other day, Connie Mack and Clark Griffith began discussing Bobo Newsom, the much travelled pitcher. . . . "I thought you were going to sign him, Griff," Connie commented. . . . "No, No!" Griffith exclaimed. "I just haven't got your patience. I said to myself: 'If he wore out Connie Mack in one year, what would he do to me a fifth time?'"

American merchant shipping at the end of World War II constituted three-fifths of the entire world's.

Daub Paint On Bust Of Truman

KANSAS CITY, May 7—(AP)—A bust of President Truman presented to the University of Kansas City by the Mexican government was daubed with gold and blue paint Thursday in an intercampus rivalry.

Two KCU students spotted the paint job on their way to classes shortly before noon. After a brief inspection of the job, they spotted and captured a youth who was hiding in bushes bordering the campus quadrangle.

Taken before Dr. Robert Mortvedt, vice-president of the university, the youth said he was a junior at nearby Rockhurst college, but denied he did the painting. He intimated that it was the work of two other youths who fled.

Officials of the two colleges met and discussed the prank, along with several others on both campuses in recent days. They issued a joint statement, saying events had gone so far that punishment which would impress students with the seriousness of their acts should be given.

The Truman bust was presented to the college a year ago when President Miguel Aleman of Mexico visited the campus.

Ranchers Slain In Argument

PERRYTON, Tex., May 7—(AP)—Two Texas panhandle ranchers—a father and his son—were shot to death shortly before noon Thursday on a counter road 25 miles south of here.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Phagan said that soon after C. W. Barker, 53, and his son, W. H .Barker, 26, were slain another rancher, a longtime neighbor of the Barkers, surrendered and was placed in the Ochilltree county jail.

Ralph Cook, a neighbor of all three men, said he witnessed the shooting. He told Sheriff W. H. Lance that the shooting climaxed an argument.

The men were killed with soft-nosed bullets fired from a .270 rifle, Cook said.

Cook told the sheriff that he and the man who had surrendered were on their way to the man's home when they were stopped on the dirt road by the Barkers and were asked where they were going.

He said that an argument between the Barkers and the man he was with arose. He said the elder Barker reached for a rifle strapped on the dashboard of his pickup truck. Cook said that his companion grabbed his own rifle and shot Barker.

Barker's son, Cook said, reached for his father's gun, but was shot.

Reprimand Soldier Causing A Wreck

WINSFORD, Cheshire, England, May 7—(AP)—A jury Thursday reprimanded a soldier in a hurry to get home for causing a train wreck which killed 24.

The soldier pulled a communications cord and stopped a London-Glasgow Express near here April 24. He wanted to get off and cut across the fields to his home. Another train smashed into the Express.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "misadventure" and decided the soldier acted "selfishly" but not criminally.

Three Killed As Cars Collide

DUMAS, Texas, May 7—(AP)—Three men were killed and two were injured Thursday in collision of two automobiles a mile and one-half south of Dumas.

The dead are James L. Gunter of Norman, Okla.; W. T. Hogue, Amarillo, Tex., and Frank L. Kelly, 23½ Sherman St., Hutchinson, Kans.

The injured men, not immediately identified, were brought to a hospital here.

Sells Aprons In Court House To Pay Fine

NEW YORK, May 7—(AP)—A pretty blonde set up shop in a court house Thursday and sold three dozen aprons to cops, reporters and lawyers to pay a $30 fine.

Miss Corena Synhorst, 22, formerly of Pella, Iowa, pleaded "guilty with an explanation" when she came to traffic court on six parking charges.

The explanation: she loaned her car to her best girl friend and went to Havana. While she was gone Miss Synhorst's boy friend squired the girl friend around in Miss Synhorst's car—and parked it illegally.

The sale lasted 10 minutes and brought her more than enough for the fine.

Katy Train Held Up For Time

A report to the police headquarters and fire departments was given by a Katy employe from the M. K. T. depot, Thursday night around 8:30 o'clock, that a M. K. T. freight train was blocking crossings from Third street to Sixteenth street for a considerable time.

It was reported that the train being held was due to someone tampering with the air cock apparatus.

Falstaff goes to a "CASEY JONES" party

How a guitar gave birth to a party. It happened one night when Ted Moffett and Charlie Adams, two popular young Kansas City bachelors, were sitting around their living room singing—with somewhat more gusto than melody—one of their favorite old tunes, "Casey Jones." Ted, who plays the guitar, said, "Charlie! This gives me an idea for a party!"

The party took place some weeks later in the basement, where Charlie keeps his model railroad. Hosts were outfitted as old-time railroaders. Guests, too, came dressed in the "Casey Jones" manner. All the familiar old railroad songs were sung to the accompaniment of Ted's guitar. The refreshment served was another traditional favorite of this part of the country, Premium Quality Falstaff. For this beer, first in the Heart of America, seems to fit the mood of mellow old songs as nothing else can.

"Here's to us," said Ted to his girl, Mary, as the party ended. She agreed that the evening, like that last refreshing glass of Falstaff, had been just about perfect. It's true that the mellow, friendly flavor of this famous old beer just can't be duplicated. For Falstaff is the only beer made from a yeast so rare, so precious, that it's insured for One Million Dollars!

Approve 70-Group Airforce

Senate Acts And Sends Measure Back To House After Amended

By Jack Rutledge

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—The Senate, sizzling with talk of a "Communist threatened world," today approved by a landslide 74 to 2 vote a $3,233,200,000 measure to build a 70-group air force.

Only Senators Taylor (D-Idaho) and Cain (R- Wash) voted against it.

The legislation now goes back to the House, which passed an almost similar bill 343 to 3, for action on a few minor Senate amendments. Little trouble is expected in reaching a compromise between the two.

Then the final bill goes to the President for his signature or veto.

Senator Bridges (R-NH), chairman of the appropriations committee which worked out the air force bill, pulled no punches in a carefully prepared speech urging speedy approval of the money to modernize and expand the air force.

He said the United States can never equal Russian manpower on the ground and must offset this with the world's greatest air force.

Both he and Senator Hill (D-Ala) called Russia our only possible opponent in a future war. Bridges also said Russia may have the atomic bomb sometime between 1951 and 1953 and urged the Senate to get busy and throw up a quick defense—an all-powerful air force.

Outlines Strength

Bridges outlined comparative strengths of American and Russian armed forces and advised leaders of our own to quit haggling about "balanced" services.

"Balance requires an external military balance against Russia, not an internal political balance to preserve the relative status of any one service," he said sharply.

Bridges was referring to the fight between Congress, the administration and armed forces leaders over a 55, 66 or 70 group air force.

The administration originally wanted 55, Congress recommended 70 and backed its sentiment with funds, and later Secretary of Defense Forrestal said he would compromise with 66. He said 70 would throw the armed services out of balance.

His 66-group combat force, however, would be supplied in considerable part with World War II planes now held in reserve.

Congress wants a modern, full-strength 70-group force converted to jet fighters and jet propelled bombers with wider range.

The appropriations measure voted by the Senate today, and the House earlier, would provide funds to enable industry to tool up for major production of modern planes, as well as enable the air force to expand.

"Old Fashioned Weapons"

Senator Malone (R-Nev) emphasized this angle today when he said American troops of World Wars I and II were trained and armed with old-fashioned weapons.

"Let's don't murder these kids again," he said, adding that if our planes are slower or guns less powerful "it is murder."

Senator Lodge (R-Mass) said he would support the bill but said he didn't believe Russia would go to war "automatically" once she had the atomic bomb. He criticized Air Secretary Symington by name for indicating this.

Lodge also warned of costs, saying: "If we increase appropriations every time we get angry we can, over a period of years, bleed ourselves to death."

Senator Taylor (D-Idaho), Henry A. Wallace's running mate in third party, agreed this country needs a "reasonable amount" of armaments. But he said he believed there was "something more" hidden in the talk about Communism.

Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) said he was happy to vote for the bill which, he said, differs from usual "foolish projects and giving our money away."

The bill voted today contains funds for both the air force and the air arms of the navy and marines. It boosts by xxxxxxxxx the total asked by Defense Secretary Forrestal.

Swarm To Bomber Plant

WICHITA, Kas., May 6—(AP)—Workmen swarmed over huge, 4-engined B-29 and B-50 bombers here today as Congress pushed ahead with the proposed 70-group air force.

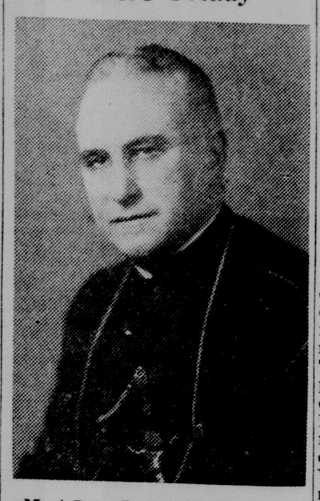

Already, Boeing Airplane Company officials told a score of news and radio men touring the reactivated plant II, Boeing's Wichita payroll has grown from 1,700 to 3,000 workers.

By Aug. 1, as the modernization of B-29s and modification of the later-built B-50s moves ahead, Boeing-Wichita will employ "from six to seven thousand."

It was the 3,000,000 square foot,

Fishing Boat Hits the Ice

SEATTLE, May 6—(AP)—The 119 foot fishing boat Tootsie crashed into the ice 30 miles north of Port Heiden, Alaska, last night and was drifting with the ice today with 13 men aboard.

Distress calls from the vessel, bound from Port Moller to Mushagak, were picked up by the coast guard cutter Bittersweet. The Bittersweet put out from Cold Bay, at the tip of the Alaskan peninsula, for the Tootsie and expected to reach her at midnight.

The Tootsie radioed that she was leaking aft.

Her supply of fresh water also was running low.

Planes from Kodiak and Port Randle were to try to reach the craft.

Daub Paint On Bust Of Truman

KANSAS CITY, May 6—(AP)—A bust of President Truman presented to the University of Kansas City by the Mexican government was daubed with gold and blue paint today in an intercampus rivalry.

Two KCU students spotted the paint job on their way to classes shortly before noon. After a brief inspection of the job, they spotted and captured a youth who was hiding in bushes bordering the campus quadrangle.

Taken before Dr. Robert Mortvedt, vice-president of the university, the youth said he was a junior at nearby Rockhurst college, but denied he did the painting. Te intimated that it was the work of two other youths who fled.

Officials of the two colleges met and discussed the prank, along with several others on both campuses in recent days. They issued a joint statement, saying events had gone so far that punishment which would impress students with the seriousness of their acts should be given.

The Truman bust was presented to the college a year ago when President Miguel Aleman of Mexico visited the campus.

Argue Today--- Gas Heating

Be Contended Curtailing Blow To Heating Firms

JEFFERSON CITY, May 6—(AP)—The Missouri Public Service Commission will listen to argument tomorrow on whether it should continue a temporary curtailment against addition of new heating customers by utilities getting gas from Cities Service pipeline company.

The temporary order, issued April 16, affects potential new gas users in much of western Missouri, including Kansas City, St. Joseph, Nevada, Springfield, Joplin, Carthage and Sedalia.

Those towns are served by utilities buying gas from Cities Service.

Meanwhile, the Kansas City Sheet Metal and Heating Contractors' Association of Kansas City, representing 76 firms, asked the PSC today to permit the organization to intervene in the case.

The Association said the order if made permanent through the coming winter, would create "a crisis in the heating contracting field in Kansas City.

The contractors said there are several thousand homes now being erected in the Kansas City area and the ban against use of gas for new heating plants would cause the heating firms "irreparable damage and injury."

The temporary order of last month was handed down after Gas Service Company of Kansas City said it expected to experience a shortage of gas next winter.

Ranchers Slain In Argument

PERRYTON, Tex., May 6—(AP)—Two Texas panhandle ranchers—a father and his son—were shot to death shortly before noon today on a country road 25 miles south of here.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Phagan said that soon after C. W. Barker, 53, and his son, W. H .Barker, 26, were slain another rancher, a long-time neighbor of the Barkers, surrendered and was placed in the Ochilltree county jail.

Ralph Cook, a neighbor of all three men, said he witnessed the shooting. He told Sheriff W. H. Lance that the shooting climaxed an argument.

The men were killed with soft-nosed bullets fired from a .270 rifle, Cook said.

Cook told the sheriff that he and the man who had surrendered were on their way to the man's home when they were stopped on the dirt road by the Barkers and were asked where they were going.

He said that an argument between the Barkers and the man he was with arose. He said the elder Barker reached for a rifle strapped on the dashboard of his pickup truck. Cook said that his companion grabbed his own rifle and shot Barker.

Barker's son, Cook said, reached for his father's gun, but was shot.

Sells Aprons In Court House To Pay Fine

NEW YORK, May 6—(AP)—A pretty blonde set up shop in a court house today and sold three dozen aprons to cops, reporters and lawyers to pay a $30 fine.

Miss Corena Synhorst, 22, formerly of Pella, Iowa, pleaded "guilty with an explanation" when she came to traffic court on six parking charges.

The explanation: she loaned her car to her best girl friend and went to Havana. While she was gone Miss Synhorst's boy friend squired the girl friend around in Miss Synhorst's car—and parked it illegally.

The sale lasted 10 minutes and brought her more than enough for the fine.

Confidence Of Peace Greater

Truman Talks Of It To Family Life Conference

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—Top government officials are talking of world peace prospects with an air of greater confidence than they have shown for many weeks.

They are not passing out any rose-colored glasses. They are, decidedly, in favor of keeping the nation's powder dry. But there is, in top level statements, a note of guarded optimism that was not there earlier in the spring.

President Truman talked about peace today to the national conference on family life.

"That we must attain. That we are going to attain," he said. "We are on the road, even if it looks rough and rugged and rocky."

This country is going to help make the United Nations work for peace, Mr. Truman said. And that can be done, he told his news conference later, without changing the U. N. Charter.

It was less than two months ago, on March 11, that the President said his confidence in world peace was somewhat shaken.

Secretary of State Marshall talked of peace yesterday in warning against proposals to revise the United Nations—without Russia, if need be.

He said, in substance, that there can be peace once the western world becomes so strong that no one would dare attack it. He said he was "not without hope" that the U. N. can be made to work under the present Charter.

The tone of Marshall's testimony to the House Foreign Affairs committee contrasted with his statements in early March that the world situation was "very, very serious" and that a grave crisis exsisted.

Neither the President nor Marshall, in the remarks yesterday and today, gave any suggestion that the "crisis" is evaporating. But both now appear to see a possible peaceful end to it. They seem to feel that this country's "stop Communism" policy shows signs of working.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "misadventure" and decided the soldier acted "selfishly" but not criminally.

Try Again To Settle Meat Packers Strike

No Move Thus Far To Resort To Injunctions

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—President Truman said today he did not plan yet—to end the eight week-old meat packers strike by injunctions such as were used against atomic energy workers and the soft coal miners.

Instead, government conciliators will try again to settle the strike at conferences beginning in Chicago Saturday.

Cyrus S. Ching, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said a panel of mediators will arrange meetings with representatives of the striking CIO Packinghouse Workers and the major packers there.

President Truman was asked today if the failure of conciliation meetings had changed his mind on the necessity for seeking an injunction.

He replied that no new move was planned yet.

Another angle of the strike developed today when Chairman Hartley (R-NJ) of the House labor committee ordered an investigation of violence reported in Kansas City, Kas., last week.

He named Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) to head a three-man subcommittee to make the check.

"We've got to put a stop to violence in labor disputes," Hartley said.

New Move To Avert Rail Strike

Union Leaders To Meet Steelman— Some Roads Sent Lay-Off Notices

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—President Truman said today the full strength of the administration and all available resources of the law are being thrown into an effort to head off the threatened railroad strike.

He is trying to keep the peace, he told a news conference—trying to keep the country running.

He said he has done and is doing everything possible under the special law which governs the disputes of railroad workers and management.

John R. Steelman, the President's assistant on labor matters, has a date at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow with the heads of three key operating brotherhoods which have voted to strike next Tuesday morning.

Although such a walkout could tie up the whole country in a very short time, Mr. Truman had a definite no for a reporter who asked whether the Office of Defense Transportation had been alerted to seize the railroads.

The Missouri Pacific announced later that "instructions have been sent to supervisory officers to terminate services of train crews not involved in the strike, to take effect not later than 6 a. m. (CST) May 11."

A MoPac spokesman added that "Supervisors will use their judgment in making progressive force reductions in other classifications starting at 12:01 p. m. May 12."

Asked whether this means the railroad will not attempt to operate any trains in the event the strike is called, the spokesman said no decision had been reached on this.

The President declined to comment on reports of numerous embargoes on perishable freight and orders for layoffs of railroad nonoperating personnel in anticipation of the threatened strike.

Wait And See Policy

Another reporter recalled that Mr. Truman advocated the induction of railroad men into the military service at the time of the rail strike in 1946. When asked whether the same legislative proposals might be put forward this time, the President said, let's wait and see. The union leaders will meet with Steelman at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow — less than 100 hours before the scheduled walkout which threatens to paralyze the nation's rail network.

Invited to the conference were: Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

A. J. Grover, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

All sent word they would be at the meeting.

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary who announced the conference, declined to say whether any definite proposal would be presented to the unions, which demand a 30 percent pay increase and changes in 25 working rules.

Johnston, who received notice of the meeting at his Cleveland headquarters, said Steelman indicated he wanted to talk to the union representatives first, and then the railroad operators. Ross said he couldn't verify that point.

As Johnston boarded a Washington-bound train tonight, he told reporters he was leaving Cleveland with no idea what might develop.

"If the railroad people come in there with open minds we might get somewhere," he said.

However, he said he could not anticipate in advance that a settlement is in sight.

Send Lay-Off Notices

The railroads began sending out lay-off notices to employes who wouldn't be needed if the trains stopped running. Some of the roads, including the big Pennsylvania system, announced they plan to shut down everything. Others, such as the Illinois Central, said they would try to maintain operations as normally as possible.

It appeared probable that no direct presidential plea for a settlement of the dispute without a strike would be made unless there were excellent advance indications that it would be heeded.

CHICAGO, May 6—(AP)—Many railroads began serving all their workers with layoff notices today, in preparation for Tuesday's scheduled strike. Many others declared embargoes on perishable freight. Some planned to continue operating.

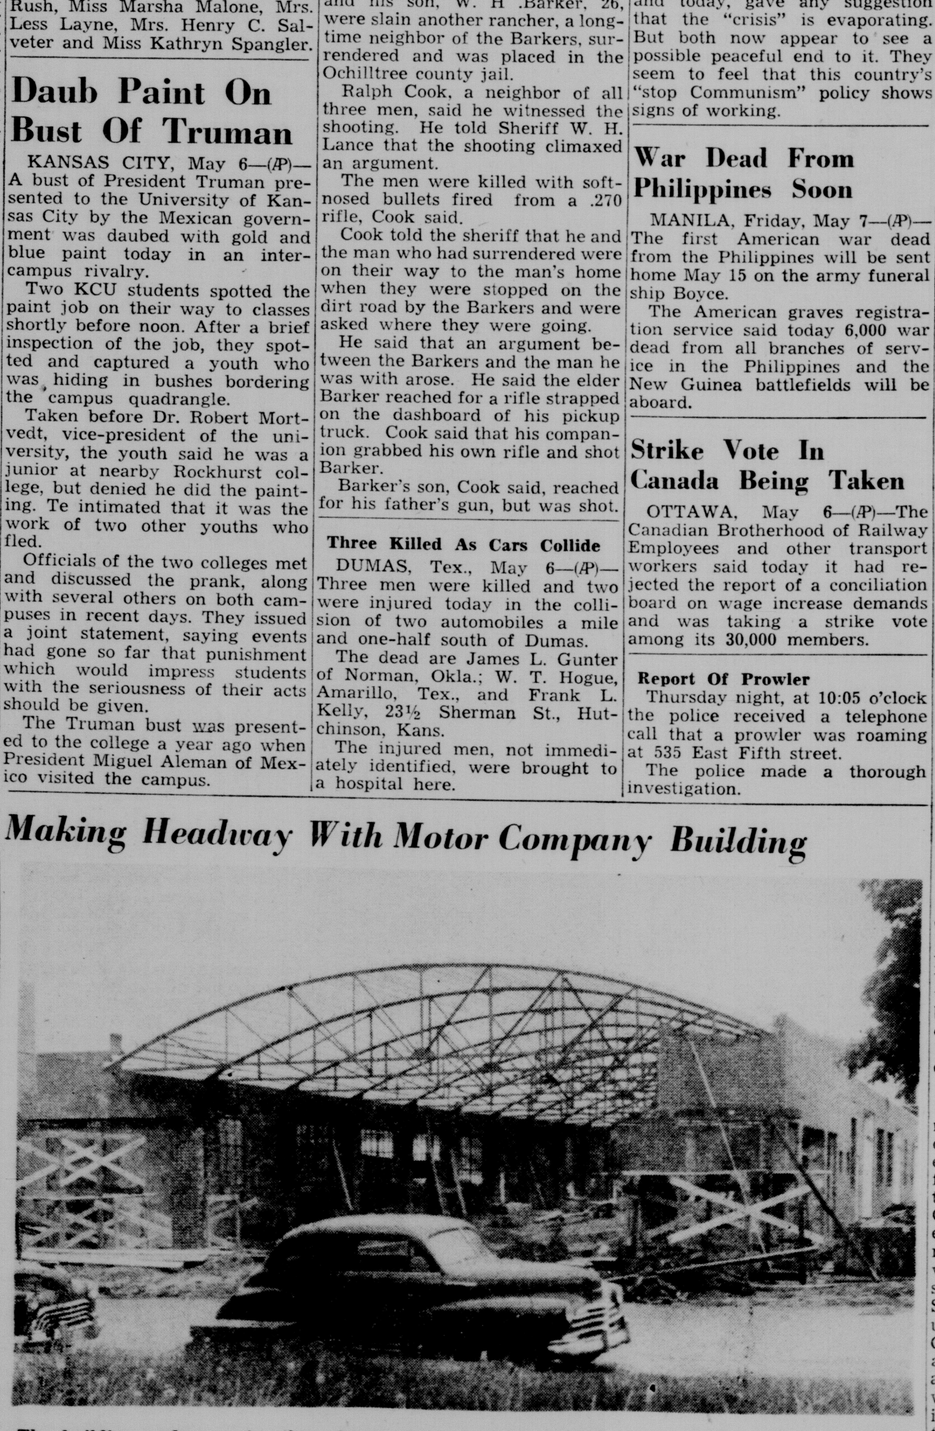

The actions indicated that any

The moth was of a light brown color with its wings edged in a still lighter brown and beige shade. Spots on its wings were also beige color. In front were feelers that resembled little straight feathers like those sometimes worn on women's hats.

According to Dr. J. E. Cannaday, authority on insects, this moth is the largest species in the United States and is very rare.

Warrants For Violators of Traffic Rules

Overtime Parkers Failing to Appear Will Be Arrested

A good many Sedalians the past week have been receiving "Notice Cards" from the police department informing them they have failed to appear at police headquarters on an overtime parking violation. Most of those who have received the cards have appeared at headquarters and posted their bonds for appearance in police court, while a large percentage of persons receiving the cards to date have not appeared.

Starting Monday morning those who have failed to answer the "Notice Card" will be named on warrants for their arrest for having failed to heed the warning. It was stated that persons who are arrested on the warrants are also subject to additional costs plus the fine which might be imposed.

New Program Necessary

The laxity of enforcement of overtime parking tickets for several months has made it necessary for the program of "Notice Cards" and for issuing of "warrants." It has been pointed out that many violators have recently resorted to tearing up the parking ticket and failing to appear at police headquarters, making it necessary for other methods to get a violator to appear.

A new check also has been made in regard to the cards. When ever a car is found parked on a meter "overtime" the meter is then checked to ascertain if it is or is not in working condition. If working on the reverse side of the tag is written the meter has been checked, found to be working, and the officers name who made the check, all of which saves any argument at police headquarters with the desk sergeant, who before was unaware if it was or was not working.

Saturday nine violators who had posted one-dollar bonds, forfeited their bonds when they failed to appear before Judge Harry O. Berry in police court.

'Million Dollar' Rain Falls in Pettis County

Storms And at Least One Tornado Reported in Kansas

Pettis county enjoyed a drenching rain, a rain which was described by one farmer as a "million-dollar wetting". But along with the long needed rain came a windstorm which caused little if any damage about the city, flashes of lightning, and thunder.

During the past few days farmers have been complaining of the ground becoming very dry. In this dry spell many farms worked their fields and were ready for the downpour which arrived about 6:30 o'clock, and continued for more than five and a half hours.

In Sedalia many low places in the streets were running lakes, for several hours.

During the windstorm a few branches were blown from trees but nothing of any great loss was reported.

During the electrical show, lightning struck a light pole in the alley just off of New York avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets. The pole was set afire but it soon died out. The East Sedalia fire company answered the alarm at 8:42. No damage resulted.

Tornado In Kansas

A line of thunderstorms, including at least one tornado, swept eastward across Kansas into Missouri last night (Saturday).

A tornado ripped across Neosho county in southeastern Kansas, levelling farm buildings and killing livestock. No injuries were reported immediately.

In northeastern McPherson county nearly three inches of rain fell in one hour, accompanied by hail that shattered roofs and windows and stripped trees and young crops. The small town of Roxbury was damaged heavily in the area, which was about eight miles wide and 10 miles long.

Hail, wind and rain were reported scattered throughout central Kansas, Medora, Turon and Buhler were among towns hit. Hutchinson had .76 inch of rain. Clay Center, farther north, had heavy rain.

High winds swept through Lebo and Halstead a few miles west of Wichita. Topeka suffered power failure, blamed on wind, lightning and rain.

New Move To Avert Rail Strike

strike would almost completely paralyze the nation's vast rail system. The strike call provides for operation only of troop, milk and hospital trains.

The layoff notices are required under union contract with the individuals roads. Some lines planned to keep their shops open as such work would not be affected by the threatened strike of three operating unions.

Try To Operate

However, at least two lines announced in advance they will try to continue operating, despite the strike.

The Illinois Central, running between Chicago, Gulf Ports and Florida, announced it will "try to maintain operations as normally as possible."

The Louisville and Nashville said it will attempt to operate skeleton passenger service throughout its system, manning trains with supervisory personnel.

Under their contracts the individual roads are required to give anywhere from five days to 48 hours notice of impending layoffs. Rail spokesmen said "abolition" of jobs spoken of in some announcements was merely a legal way of saying "layoff."

Meantime the roads began other preparations for the strike through embargoing food and animal shipments. This is being done both to avoid damage claims and to prevent jamming of terminal yards.

Pennsylvania To Shut Down

The Pennsylvania announced it would shut down its entire system and not attempt to operate trains, but the Illinois Central said it would "try to maintain operations as normally as possible." The Louisville and Nashville, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis-San Francisco, placed their embargo for Friday.

The Southern Railroad made its ban effective at 12:01 a. m. Saturday. The Association of American Railroads said no general embargo action is planned, since such steps are up to the individual roads.

The three unions have rejected a presidential board's recommendation for a 15½ cent wage increase, standing instead upon their demand for a 30 per cent boost and changes in 25 working rules.

Send Out Layoff Notices

The layoff notices were spread throughout the nation, although some roads, like the Southern Pacific, said they had no immediate plans for furloughing. The Baltimore and Ohio said it would not recall 8,500 employes still laid off in the wake of the recent coal strike, and added that all its men will be laid off at 12:01 a. m. (EST) Wednesday.

The Chesapeake and Ohio; the New York, New Haven, and Hartford; the Boston and Maine; and the Southern also sent out layoff notices.

The Pennsylvania said in a letter to all its employes that the strike might idle all its 140,000 employes. The Louisville and Nashville said there was a "possibility" of layoffs on Tuesday.

The unions, in announcing the strike, said their members will operate milk, troop, and hospital trains.

At Kansas City, the Kansas City Southern announced it was preparing an embargo plan to go into effect at midnight Friday. It, however, will provide for the acceptance of perishable freight in carload and less-than-carload quantities up to midnight Sunday, provided the cargo can be delivered to the door of the consignee before the hour set for the strike.

The KCS will continue to accept "dead" freight, such as steel, lumber, sand and coal with a "subject to delay" agreement by the shipper.

News Briefs

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—A new effort by the United States to end the fighting in Palestine and get the British to extend their rule beyond May 15 has fallen through.

Diplomatic officials revealed today a 4-point proposal was presented to Jewish and Arab representatives by United States officials at United Nations headquarters in New York Monday.

CIO Director Into Custody

KANSAS CITY, Kas., May 6—(AP)—James J. Leary, regional director of the CIO, was one of two men taken into custody today by police partolling the strike front at the Armour & Co., packing plant.

Sgt. Jack Enright and Thomas Saint, a patrolman, arrested Leary and W. E. Lewis, a CIO field representative, for alleged violation of a temporary restraining order issued last Monday to the company against illegal picketing at the plant.

Both men were taken before District Judge Willard M. Benton, who had issued the order. He set a contempt hearing for the men for 10 a. m. Friday.

Sergeant Enright said Leary and Lewis had incited a group of about 15 pickets who were gathered in front of one of the plant's entrances.

The officer said a ring of pickets had prevented a truck from entering the plant.

Leary, who heads approximately 100,000 workers in Kansas and western Missouri, contended he and Lewis were engaged only in "peaceful picketing." They were booked on charges of violating the court order and were released on $1,000 recognizance bonds pending Friday's hearings.

Bathing Suits Are Too Scanty

HOLLYWOOD, May 6—(AP)—The new scanty bathing suits are too scanty for Esther Williams.

Esther, a gal with more curves than the Boston Post Road, should know whereof she speaks. The movie actress who was national swimming champion, says the scanty-wantys are "unflattering, immodest, impractical."

"Why they come off in the water," she confides. "If you can't swim in them, what good are they? They don't do anything for the female figure. If the object is to get more skin exposed to the sun, I say sunbathing should be done in the back yard, not at the beach or pool where men have nothing to do but look."

Esther said she thinks women should have their swim suits tailored to their figure as they do a dress.

Admits Murder Of Her Father

WHEATON, ILL., May 6—(AP)—Frances Korbelik, 16, displayed no emotion yesterday at the burial service for her father whom she has admitted slaying.

The attractive brown haired girl watched the services with her mother and younger sister, who sobbed during the ceremony.

Later she was brought to the Du Page county jail where she was formally charged with the murder of her father in a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace William H. Johnson on the complaint of Sheriff Elmer Hoffman.

Johnson advised her, because of her youth, to enter a plea of innocent. A hearing was set for May 19 and the former high school student was ordered held in jail.

After the young girl's arraignment she was taken to her home in Tri-State Village, near Hinsdale, a Chicago suburb, where she reenacted the slaying of her father, William Korbelik, 42.

Conflicting Stories About the Flynns

HOLLYWOOD, May 6—(AP)—Errol Flynn, left via airliner for St. Louis today minus his pretty wife, Nora Eddington, and the fact that he went alone was given conflicting interpretations.

Then, friends said, he and Mrs. Flynn had a slight spat and Flynn wound up on an American Airline plane for St. Louis, along with Peter Stackpole, national magazine photographer, and a pal of the actor's.

This version was denied by Mrs. Jack Eddington, Mrs. Flynn's mother.

"She never intended to go with Errol," Mrs. Eddington said. "Their baby (Rory, a year old) is ill and Nora won't be leaving for several days. She will join Errol in New York."

'Kissing Jim' And 20-Yr-Old Girl Are Wed

He First Saw Her In a Crowd; She Left Him Speechless

By Ben Price

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 6—(AP)—Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, whose antics with the women earned him the title of "Kissing Jim," has married the 21-year-old girl who once left him speechless.

The surprise wedding of the six-feet, eight-inch widower to Miss Jamelle Moore, who stands five-feet-five, took place late yesterday at Rockford, Ala.

For the 39-year-old governor and father of two small daughters, his marriage to the brunette, state-employed secretary was the climax to a busy 24-months, political and otherwise.

Early last March he was named defendant in a paternity suit brought by an attractive red haired divorcee who charged he was the father of her two-year-old son. He shortly thereafter took a trip to Washington and New York.

Some Whistled

In Washington, government secretaries leaned out of windows and home even whistled. In New York, a models' group named him the most eligible bachelor of the year and he stopped traffic on Fifth avenue by kissing most of the girls within reach.

Still later in Texas he was photographed on a kissing spree and even before this there were stories of his cross-country romance with Virginia Warren, the daughter of California Gov. Earl Warren.

After yesterday's ceremony at a little Baptist church, the governor and his bride returned to Montgomery for a brief talk with newspapermen. After the governor and Mrs. Folsom disappeared, the governor saying he planned to be back in the office today.

The governor told the newspapermen of his first meeting with the young girl who now is the first lady of Alabama:

Just Stopped Speaking

"I was making a speech," he said, "when I was running for governor. I saw her in the crowd and I stopped speaking. I missed about a minute of my speech before I could catch up."

The new Mrs. Folsom toyed with a lock of hair and observed, "I feel like I'm going around in circles."

"We just took off from work," the governor explained. "She quit her job today. She just up and lost her job at the highway department."

Mrs. Folsom attended high school in Ensley, Ala., and became a cheerleader and member of the rifle team.

While the governor was talking with newspapermen, his two daughters, Rachel 8, and Melissa 5, played on the lawn outside the executive mansion. His first wife died in 1944.

Girls For It

"The girls," said Folsom, "are all for it."

The association has been disputing with the present Washington branch for 18 months because it refused membership to Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, a Negro.

Schoolboy Rowe Has A Broken Thumb

ST. LOUIS, May 6—(AP)—Pitcher Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe of the Philadelphia Phils is nursing a broken left thumb, suffered in a game with the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

Rowe was injured when he knocked down a hard smash by Peanuts Lowery in the third inning.

Manager Ben Chapman of the Phils said he did not know how long it will be before the El Dorado, Ark., right-hander pitches again.

Story of the Wolf

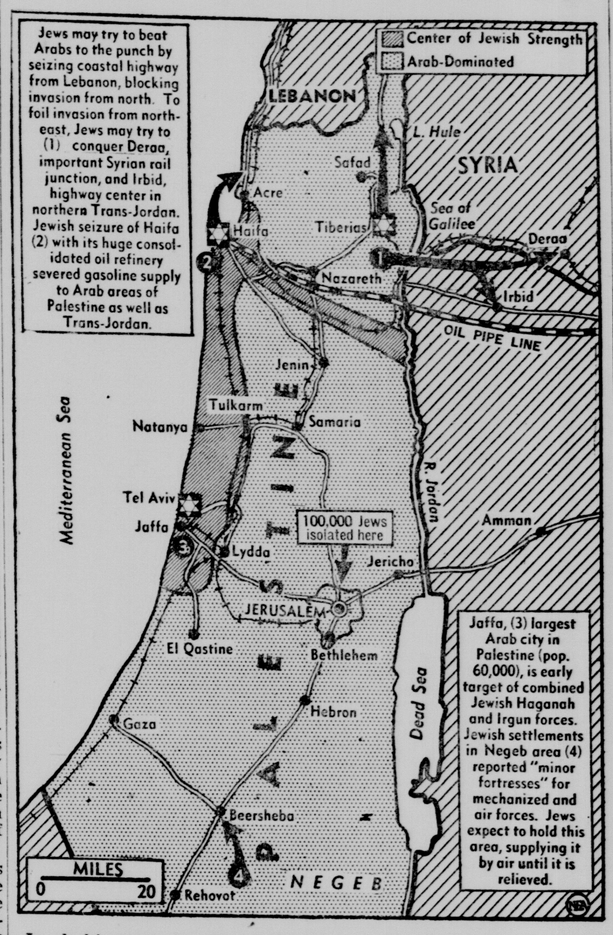

HORNICK, Ia., May 6—(AP)—It's hard to say which was the more surprised, Frank Modde or the wolf.

Modde was walking through a field near here the other day. Coming to a creek, he saw some straw lying on the opposite bank and leaped into the straw. There was a wolf under the straw. It reared, threw Modde off balance and into the creek. Modde related the story to friends yesterday.

Falls To Death

ST. LOUIS, May 6—(AP)—Emmett J. McDonald, a tuckpointer, fell eight stories to his death yesterday from a downtown building. A fellow workman said a scaffolding buckled and threw McDonald off balance.

How Jews May Beat Arabs to Punch

In slashing attacks, Jewish forces won the initial rounds in the battle for Palestine by seizing Haifa, the Holy Land's only port for ocean ships, capturing Tiberias and attacking Jaffa, the Arabs' only stronghold on the upper coastal plain. May 15, final withdrawal date for British forces, is seen as "D" Day for all-out Arab invasion of Palestine. But Jews may beat Arabs to the punch as indicated on this map. From Haifa they can thrust north or southeast, toward Arab stronghold north of Jerusalem. Likewise, from Tiberias, they can counter-punch into Galilee or boldly attack strategic points in Syria and Trans-Jordan.

Speculate Russia Might Be Ready For A Sort Of Truce

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

There is considerable speculation going around as to whether Russia might be ready for some sort of truce in the cold war.

Since the world flareup over the rape of Czechoslovakia she has not seemed quite so aggressive. She didn't pin Finland quite so tightly to the wall as had been expected. She didn't put up much of a battle for the Communists in Italy's election. Her march toward a clearcut showdown in Berlin was halted, at least temporarily, with one foot in the air. Greece's guerrillas have been left almost alone to face the government's spring offensive. Anti-American propaganda which reached a crest during congressional consideration of the Marshall plan has diminished at least to normal. Russia has displayed, for her, a relatively detached attitude toward the Palestine problem.

Some think this may mean a period of Russian stocktaking, in the realization that their tactics are only stiffening anti-Communist sentiment.

Well, that realization in Moscow is the objective of everything the anti-Communist block has been doing. Our foreign policy has been to keep the door open, even while organizing our defenses. That may be one reason Secretary Marshall is urging Congress not to start an autopsy on the U. N. just yet. If there is even the most bedraggled soft of dove en route from east to west, nobody wants to put up a cloud in which it might get lost.

Anxious To Avoid Brawl

(The approaching fight over the U. N. another battle over "bypassing" charges, like the one which accompanied the initiation of aid for Greece and Turkey, would be no help.)

Any possibility of a Russian softening must be viewed with caution. The politburo might make a big profit from a period of sweetness and light. A lot of sentries along the anti-Communist defense line might doze off to the strains of a lullaby which stressed the contrast of western rearmament while Moscow seeks only peace. The Communists still know how to take their enemy by the hand for the moment in order that they may take him by the throat later.

Ernest Bevin has several words for it:

"As long as this (the Communist ideology) continues the world will be kept in turmoil, because the characteristics, the philosophy and the conception of life of the rest of the world will not permit us to indulge in compromises which are intended to achieve the objectives of Communism."

Moscow will have to do more than keep quiet. Some positive about-facing will be necessary before the world can quit listening for another shoe to fall.

Snyder Has no Plans to Leave Secretary of Treasury Post

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—John W. Snyder said today he had no plans to leave his post of Secretary of the Treasury. He also said he has made no agreements on what he will do when he does leave the government service.

Snyder issued a statement after receiving a number of inquiries regarding published reports that he will leave the Treasury to take a post with A. P. Giannini's West Coast bank interest. The statement said:

"In reply to inquiries, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder stated flatly that he has no plans to leave his Treasury post and that when, as, and if he does leave the government service, his intention is to return to the middle west. The secretary added that he has made no agreements as to his activities after leaving the government."

President Makes Speech on The Shortage of Houses

WASHINGTON, May 6—(AP)—President Truman today called the housing shortage an "almost fatal" problem and asked prompt action by the House to meet it.

In an extemporaneous speech before the National Conference on Family Life, the president said the problems that require solution include housing, health and social security, which have a "direct bearing on family life."

He said the family unit is the basis for all government.

Asserting a study of the problems of the founding fathers made him wonder how they were ever solved, he said:

"I look at some of the things our ancestors had to contend with and I wonder how they did it."

Discussing housing, he said:

"Just recently the Senate passed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner (housing) bill in wonderful form.

"I sincerely hope that the House of Representatives will study the legislation and give us the opportunity to act on this problem."

On Capitol Hill, the House Republican leadership was rowing angrily with Senator Taft (R-Ohio) over the bill. Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich.) of the House Banking Committee said he was "not interested" in the Senate's stopgap measure to revive the government's "Title 6" Home Loan Insurance program until June 30.

Approximately 3,000 persons listened to the president in the interdepartmental auditorium, a few blocks from the White House. His speech, made without notes, was broadcast.

Campaign Interferes

Mr. Truman said "one of the worst things" in trying to solve problems affecting family life is that this is a presidential campaign year.

Saying a president can do only what he is authorized to do, he said:

"People talk about the powers of the president. Let me tell you something. A president may have a great many powers given to him under the constitution.

"What those powers amount to is to bring people in and persuade them to do what they ought to do without persuasion."

That is the way the country functions, he said, and he thoroughly approves, but it makes the immediate solution of problems difficult.

The president recalled a family with a baby and a dog that have been living in a Washington parking lot and had been forced to move. Yet they had no place to go, he said.

Children and dogs are as necessary to the welfare of this country, he said emphatically, "as Wall Street and the railroads."

Writes His Obituary Hour Before He Dies

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 6—(AP)—Local newspapers today published the five-paragraph obituary Holt E. Pursell wrote for himself just before he died last night.

"This will help hard working newspapermen," the 74-year-old retired freight inspector told hospital attendants as he finished his manuscript less than an hou. before he died.

Editors inserted the time of death in a blank which Pursell left and ran his story in full.
